OIPC launches website survey

The Office of the Information and Privacy Commissioner for B.C. launched a new website in November 2012 (www.oipc.bc.ca). We want to know how you think the new site is performing, how our new design compares to the old website, and any suggestions you have for changes or improvements.

The website survey is administered by Fluid Surveys, a Canadian service. We have implemented privacy controls to limit the amount of data we collect from individuals with this survey. For example, we do not collect an IP address or track your location. This survey uses session-based cookies to allow you to view and/or modify previously submitted answers.

While the OIPC may publish aggregate results of this survey, individual responses will remain anonymous.
